Nathaniel White's personal affidavit of Revolutionary War service on file in the pension office at Washington, D. C., was sworn to at La Fayette, Indiana, in the Tippecanoe County Court, before Judge Kilgore and countersigned by Clerk Samuel Hoover the November term in 1833.

The record shows that Nathaniel White was then in the 75th year of his life, and was born in Dutchess County, New York, July 25, 1759, according to an entry of his father's Bible at the time in said Nathaniel's possession.

He enlisted at the age of fifteen in the regiment commanded by Colonel Marinus Willett of the New York State Militia which was raised in and about Albany and with which he served till the end of the war, as a Sergeant. His regiment was marched from Albany to Fort Plains on the Mohawk River. The principal stations of his regiment were Fort Plains and Herkimer upon the German flats. He was in the severe battle fought at Johnston and another on Canada Creek and numerous skirmishes.

White's regiment, later reduced to a battalion, was discharged in 1783.

One night while commanding a detachment of rangers between upper and lower Canada Creek he observed the smoke of an Indian fire at a distance and with the men under him made an attack upon them, destroyed them and rescued two white women from death.

He marched through the wilderness and took part in the capture of Fort Otsego, and suffered great privations in that campaign. In his application for a pension he said that having long since left the scenes of his early acquaintances and friends and emigrated to the west, he now had no knowledge of any person acquainted with his service who was able to testify thereto, but the records show that Congressman Edward A. Hannagan, later United States Senator, came to his assistance and obtained the necessary evidence from White's former adjutant of regiment, and upon his testimony the pension of eighty dollars per year was granted.

Nathaniel White, his wife and three children moved to Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, in 1795; to Clark County, Ohio, in 1812, and to near La Fayette, Indiana, in 1828, where he remained till his death in that city January 24, 1836.

The records also show that the aged veteran married Priscilla Goldsberry, December 4, 1834, and as his widow she obtained a pension in 1857 through her attorney, John Miller of La Fayette.

Nathaniel White is buried in the Greenbush Cemetery in La Fayette where rest the old settlers of that community. Hannah Finch White is buried in a country cemetery on the Wēä Plains about twelve miles from La Fayette.

A monument to the memory of Nathaniel White and three other Revolutionary soldiers buried in the Greenbush Cemetery stands at the east side near the drive, erected by the D. A. R. Chapter of La Fayette.

Nathaniel White's name is listed among the Revolutionary soldiers from Dutchess County, New York, along with fifteen others by the name of White. (Five of these are said to be his brothers.)

Nathaniel and Hannah White were members of the Baptist Church.

Hannah Finch White is a descendant of Abram Finch, the immigrant who was born in County York, England, 1585, and came in Governor Winthrop's fleet in 1630 with three of his sons. Two of them left families. The Finchs migrated from Massachusetts to Connecticut and many of them lived at Stamford and Norwalk and finally over into Dutchess and Orange Counties, New York. Many Finch graves are found in the old Sharon Cemetery which is in Connecticut, just over the New York line.

We find them prominent people in the official duties of their communities. Other immigrant ancestors of Hannah Finch are Mathias St. John, Richard Raymond, Walter Hoyt, and Thomas Betts, all from England. Mathias St. John, born 1603 in London, was the son of Sir Oliver St. John and his wife Sarah Buckley.

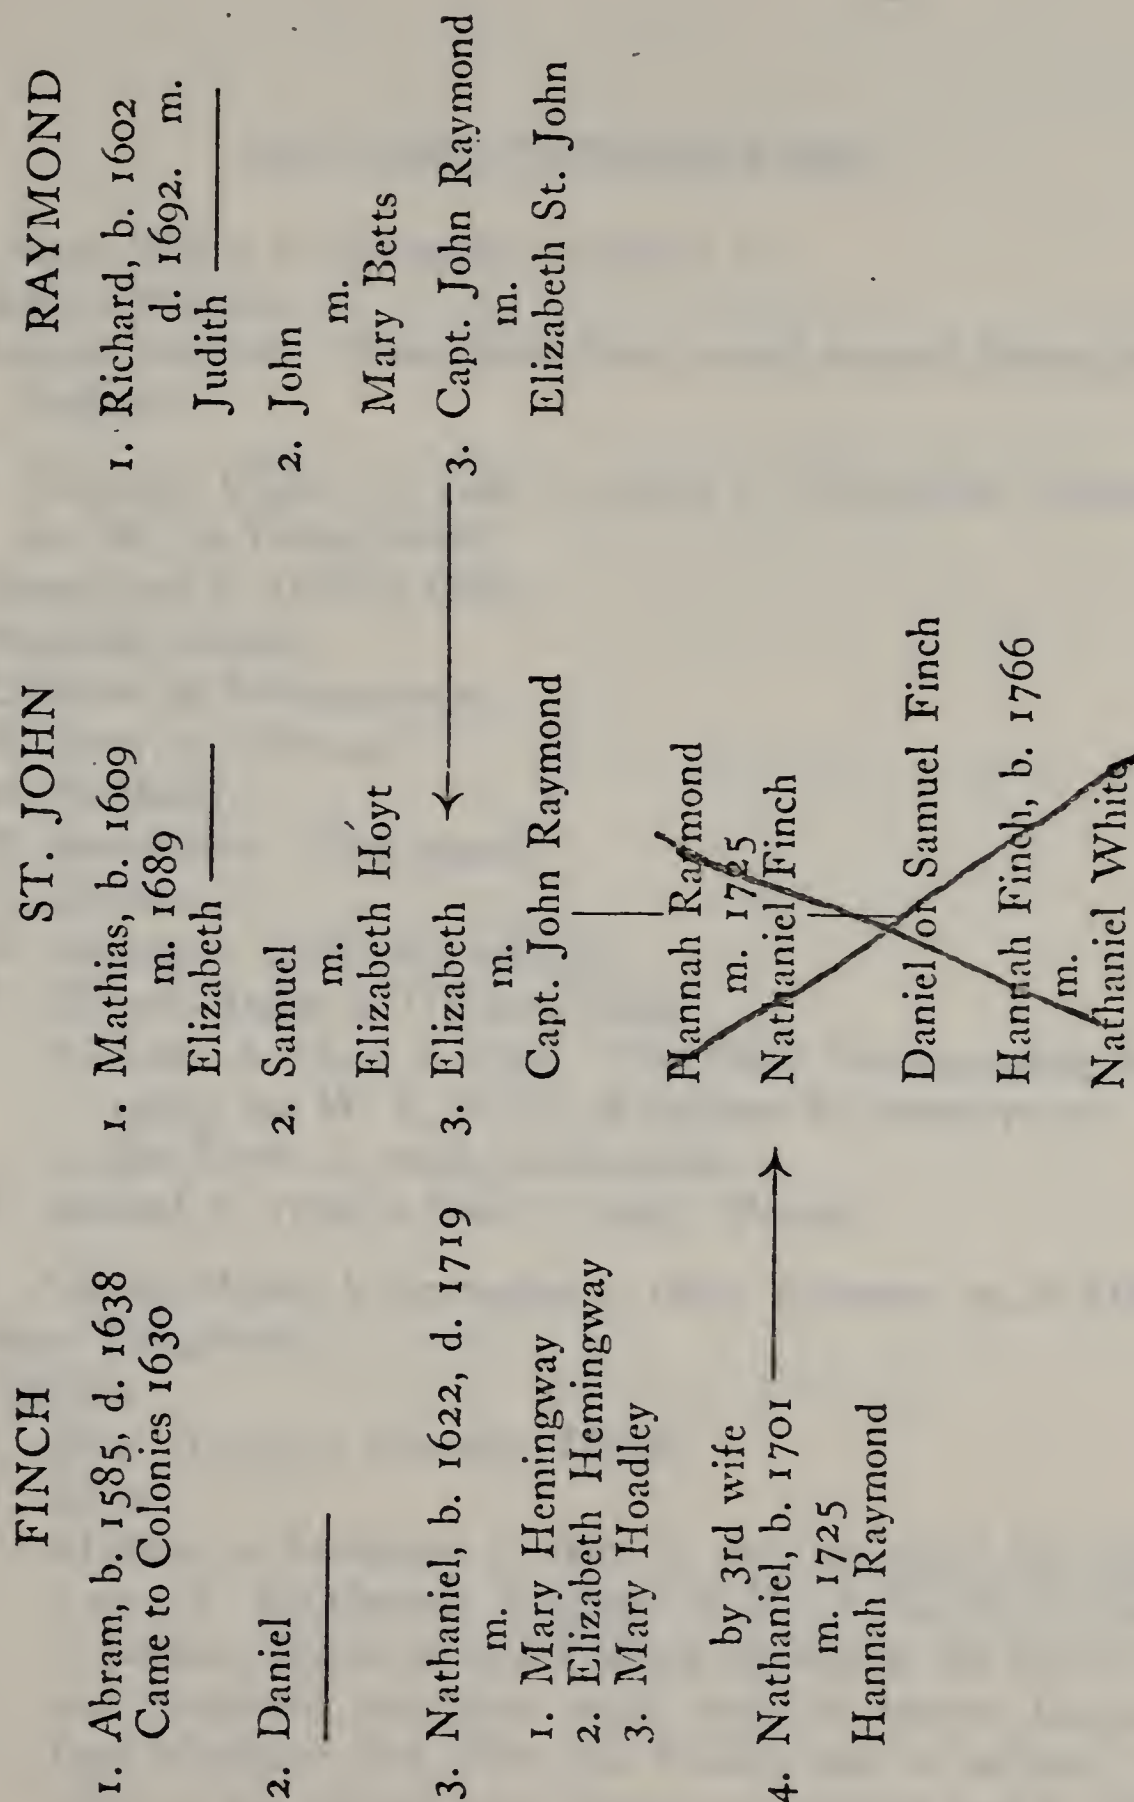

When Nathaniel White, with his family, in 1812 decided to leave Pennsylvania and go farther west, the move was made by flatboat down the Allegheny and Ohio Rivers. It was a common and interesting sight in those days to see a family and all their possessions on a flatboat, and possibly a raft in the rear, floating toward a new home.

Recently I have found records which lead me to believe the ~~(brothers)~~ of Nathaniel White who served in the Revolution were: (1) Lieutenant George White who married Patience ———. They have two children buried in the Boland burying ground in western Connecticut, Patience, who died June 4, 1773, in her second year, and Ammi, who died July 27, 1773, in his fourth year. ((2) Stephen White. (3) Anson White, a shortening of the name Alanson which runs through the family. Anson was a drummer boy.)

A Nathaniel Finch was an adjutant in Colonel Hathorn's regiment in New York. Nathaniel Finch was a second lieutenant in Colonel Henry Ludington's Regiment. Nathaniel Finch gave the lead from his windows to be used for ammunition. This information was taken from New York Revolutionary records.

Julia Noel was the daughter of Basil Noel and Mary Gregg Noel who were married in Shelby County, Kentucky, October 8, 1794. A large group of the Noel family had come into Kentucky from Virginia and South Carolina. Basil was one of the number. The records show that he purchased land in Shelby County in 1792 and more property in 1794 and 1795. The Noels had come to Virginia and South Carolina in 1660 from England, but tradition is that our Basil was born on the Bermuda Islands. Many of the name are still living in and around Frankfort, Kentucky.

Mary Gregg was the daughter of John Gregg whose will was probated in Jefferson County, Kentucky, February 7, 1792, leaving his estate to his daughters, Margaret, Mary and Lydia, and his son David.

John Gregg is a descendant of the Pennsylvania Greggs who went into Virginia and Maryland, thus to Kentucky. They had come from Scotland three generations before. We find many of both families serving in the Revolutionary War?

Mary Gregg Noel was born in 1771 in Maryland and died in Ohio, 1848.

Basil Noel was son of Septimus
+ Ruth Noel of Baltimore Md.

Septimus Noel signed the Oath of Allegiance in Md 1777

We find the Basil Noels living in Ross County, Ohio, in 1806. Later they went to Clark County, where he died in 1826. Both are buried in Fletcher Chapel Cemetery, a picturesque spot about six miles east of Springfield. The other members of their family were: (1) Matilda who married Abraham Jones and had ten children. (2) Adelia who married Joseph Whitridge and had three sons. (3) Mary who married (a) Isaac Kitchen and had ten children, (b) James Hatfield and had one son, Isaac Hatfield. (4) William Noel who disappeared when a young man, whether by Indians or foul play is not known.

The year after George White and Julia Noel were married in 1827, the Whites decided to leave Ohio and move on west. Great was the grief of great grandmother Mary Gregg Noel and her other three daughters to have Julia and her little baby and young husband go to a far away home.

With Nathaniel still at the helm the covered wagons moved west, the destination to be Illinois, but for some reason when the Wēä Plains were reached, south of La Fayette, Indiana, the travelers halted and a home was made. Of the family were Alanson and George, and their wives; Sarah and Lucy and their husbands, and later Lodeema came. Descendants of the three daughters are to be found in northern Indiana.

Twenty-two years later, in 1850, George and Julia left in their covered wagon with ten children for McLean County, Illinois. It took one week to make the trip (one we drive now in three hours), the mother and the younger children riding and the other children playing and running by the wagon, the older boys and girls on horseback, driving the sheep and cattle.

The old mill trail was taken from Attica, Indiana, and followed into central Illinois. I have always wondered if Julia, with her large family to rear, ever went back to Ohio to see the mother who felt so grieved to have her leave, although great grandmother lived for twenty years afterward, till 1848.

George White settled near Towanda, Illinois. He took out land in that township and was one of the founders of the Baptist Church in that village. The land is still in the family. Forty-two years after my mother and her family, left Indiana, when she was eleven, it was my privilege to go back to the old place with her, and I was eleven then, 1892. Strange as it may seem the neighbors, Grandpa Campbell, a venerable old gentleman, and his son Harrison, who had waved them goodbye, were still living and welcomed her with open arms. Two years ago I again stopped at the old home, this time in a motor. A Campbell still lives there but in the eighty-seven years he knew of the Whites only vaguely.

I remember grandfather in his feeble old age with his beautiful white wavy hair. I know in his younger days he was a stalwart man and a hard worker. He passed away at my mother's home where he spent his last years.

Grandmother died with the smallpox in 1865, age fifty-nine, at their home near Towanda.

One of Aunt Rachel's stories was about her father's oxen. He had four yoke with which he broke the prairie and called them Buck and Bright, Dick and Darby, Spark and Brin, Whiskey and Brandy.

Aunt Liza was a capable woman, always alert to the times. One of the joys of my childhood was a visit to the beautiful spacious brick home of this kindly uncle and aunt. Set amid a fine lawn and beautiful trees it was a landmark for miles around. To stroll through the many rooms with marble mantles, velvet carpets, horsehair furniture, even to the basement laden with bins of red and yellow apples and vegetables from large orchard and garden was awe-inspiring. Ah! Nelson Jones was a fine farmer, stockman and business man and equally famous was the hospitable wife who presided at the head of the long table. Mr. Jones was the son of Abraham Jones, a soldier of the War of 1812 and a grandson of Benjamin Jones, a Revolutionary soldier of New York.

Ellen, my mother, how shall I write of her? Industrious, ambitious, self-sacrificing, she helped our father take our home from the raw prairie; the home where I live today, seventy-seven years later. Mother was one of the younger girls of her family and after she finished school was the housekeeper. She gave the valedictory at the close of her school years at fifteen years, and sixty-seven years later at one of our family reunions she gave it again, not missing one word. Her teacher was John N. King and he taught her good expression. Heavy was the work in the White home, with the help of Adeline four years younger. The several brothers were accumulating for their start in life. The minister or neighbors were asked to Sunday dinner, according to the hospitality of the day, and the home was a stopping place for relatives where all were welcome. Grandmother was a skillful needle worker and did all the sewing, making the men's trousers and shirts, and for many years she took no active part in the house work other than managing.

Mother loved music and one of my earliest memories is of we children gathered around the parlor organ singing lustily the Sunday School and other songs while sister Cora played the organ. She also read to us the stories from the Youth's Companion.

Father was born on a hilly farm in Ohio. His parents Aaron and Mary McVey Conger came to Ohio in 1825 from Washington County, Pennsylvania, where his grandparents, David and Sarah Welch Conger, had come from New Jersey in 1797 and his maternal grandparents, Jacob and Elizabeth McVey, lived. David Conger was a Presbyterian minister, the first one to settle in Ten Mile Valley, Pennsylvania. The home he made there before 1800 still belongs to a descendant. David was the son of David Conger, a Revolutionary soldier of Middlesex County, New Jersey, and his wife Mary Darby Conger. The soldier was a great grandson of the immigrant John Conger who came to America from England in 1666 and settled at Woodbridge, New Jersey, in 1667. His patent to one hundred and sixty-eight acres of land in 1668 is shown on the Woodbridge records and his will is recorded in 1712.

Uncle George. I think my mother visited her brother George and his pleasant wife more than her other brothers. He lived on the old home from where she had been married. We passed by as we drove to church on Sunday morning and family talk would be about the new house and barns and stock. He was one of the most active of farmers and fine stock raisers in McLean County. He made several trips to Europe and imported Perchon and Englishshire horses, being one of the first to bring them into the country. A shotgun explosion in 1863 cost him his left hand, but he lead an active life. He was one of the organizers of the McLean County Bank in Bloomington, of which he was Vice-President. After leaving the farm he lived on East Chestnut Street in Bloomington. He was modest in manner and reliable and true to his duty. He lent his influence and aid to every thing for the advancement of agriculture.

Mrs. White is in descent from Jeremiah Raridon from Scotland whose son James, born in 1792 in North Carolina, a soldier of the War of 1812, was her grandfather.

THE WHITE FAMILY CELEBRATES

"The spacious and inviting home of George W. White, two miles east of Towanda, was filled with a merry party on New Year's day to participate in the family reunion. Grandpa George C. He was presented with a beautiful upholstered reclining chair, Mr. A. H. Conger acting as spokesman in a very happy manner. The dinner, by Mrs. G. W. White, was a sumptuous one.

"Mr. George C. White is the father of twelve children, viz.: Mrs. J. N. King, Saybrook; Mrs. Lyman Williams, Fairbury; Mrs. Nelson Jones, Towanda; Mrs. R. M. Sumner, Bloomington; Mrs. J. W. How often when comes the evening hour of rest,
The fading sun descending in the west,
The sky so brilliant in its colorings bright
Of red and gold as nearing evening's light,
We picture in our minds a planet where
Beyond the world of love and joy and care
We'll meet with loved ones in the days to come
And all be gathered in God's beautiful home.
No tears, no sorrow in that Heavenly Land
But pleasure ever more at God's right-hand.
Oh, keep they children, Lord, nor let them stray
Away from paths that lead to endless day.
